

Surprise!

Thursday, 08 August 2013 04:55

Maisie is rolling!

Last weekend she did her first roll - from her back to her front - and I've been watching excitedly for the next one. Today she rolled from her tummy to her back right in front of me. I was so surprised it took a moment to realize what she'd done. I'd plopped her down on her tummy with her toys right in front of her and suddenly she was the other way up and further away (and looking like it was no big deal when it really is). Later on she did some more rolls in both directions - but especially back to front - as though she was revelling in her newly discovered skill.

p.s. Obviously I've finished her new play mat. I'll write about it just as soon as I manage to get a picture of the back.